The banquet held in Canada during the Christmas-New Year's holiday season are deeply concerned about highway and street accidents which each year take a heavy toll of life.

The "mid-summer holiday" period is our busiest season, and we are all too busy to think of the thousands of guests, young and old. We hope to serve them well, but we are also anxious that they should do everything possible to survive the holiday without injuries or accidental death.

"Our staffs are under orders not to serve alcoholic beverages to guests who are already too drunk, or too much to drink. We are urged to prospective guests to know that it is mind and not just the body that counts when they are being badly treated or insulted.

"At this holiday season when so many people are out, there are urging special precautions to avoid accidents, we join them in suggesting that holiday-makers observe these few simple rules:

1. Leave your car at home and travel by taxi or bus.

2. If you must drive your own car, be extremely moderate in your drinking and before you leave home, restaurant, or hotel, drink a cup of strong coffee or tea.

3. If you overindulge, either in some other alcoholic beverage or in your own, do not drink, still leave a taxi or bus to take you home or drive with friends.

4. If all our guests observe these simple rules, it will be a merry Christmas for all and also for the State of Alberta.

Gifts From Your Kitchen

How about those great new gifts from your kitchen on an answer to the Christmas gift problem? Ask Miss Joyce Lewis, Publicist of the Alberta Department of Agriculture. Boxes of homemade cookies or breads with a festive ribbon of icing or note are always appreciated. Parol time in office time, or by hand with full and generous gift in your own style.

Little fare for your favorite jelly, cookies or rolls will always be welcome. To them with good measure of honey and let them melt in a little basket which can later be used for hot food.

Spreading of bread, perhaps you have a Christmas Bread (a sweet bread leavened with fruit) your friends have always liked. Miss Lewis suggests a "superior" loaf for a gift. Bake the dough into a triangle of baking sheet, baked at the top with a little bit of lard. Make a second row of two, third row three balls and so on to about six balls for the loaf. Add a larger ball for the top. When baked, place the top in a plastic bag and seal with adhesive or glass film. When thoroughly moist in unopened paper.

meritorious service. The old guard is dwindling, but the younger men are taking up the slack, and are carrying on.

As the past says:

Time like an ever rolling stream,
Beats all its sons away,
They fly, forgotten as a dream,
Died at the opening day.

And so, on the threshold of another year, the Delta Times once more conveys to the good wishes for the season, with the suggestion that the best way to deal with trying and difficult conditions is to face them, heads up, with a smile.

Again we say, the compliments of the season to all our readers.

Christmas Thoughts

To those who object that Christmas has become commercialized, it might well be pointed out that if it weren't commercial, there wouldn't be a Christmas for thousands of Canadians.

While there might be some argument against attempts to completely replace a Christmas feast with a massed buying offensive, there is little doubt that Christmas shopping has now been integrated in the life of Canadians to the degree that it now furnishes a major part of the income of several thousands of us. It is safe to assume, then, that were the spirit of gift-giving at Christmas to disappear, there would be any richer for it. Indeed, many of us would be a good deal poorer.

How often are Christmas gifts described in terms of "Genius French," "Made in Spain" or "Imported From Florence?" For some mystic purpose (perhaps it's a relic of the Canada of 1800) many imported goods, simply by the act of being imported, assume a greater value.

A little thought and experiment will convince most of us there's seldom any truth in this. With present higher production techniques and healthy competition, Canadian manufacturers are rapidly being recognized as worthy competitors for foreign markets. Recognized by a few, unfortunately, is a certain number of Canadians.

All of which helps to point up the truth that the slogan "Buy Canadian" is more than a makeshift patriotic maxim. It's an important economic fact.
